10 red flags to look out for during an interview

Attending an interview is a daunting prospect for most people. In preparation, job-seekers can access plenty of terrific online resources aimed at bolstering their interview performance, allaying nerves, and adapting to changing interview practices. Yet, in the quest to impress, it is easy to forget the interview is a two-way process. You can make your case as the preferred candidate, while at the same time assessing whether you want the job. It is personal. While most interviews are conducted very professionally, this is not always the case. Here are some red flags you might want to be mindful of during an interview.

5 ways students can kick-start their career while at uni

There are benefits experienced by students who make the most of their degree. They tend to gain valuable industry experience while studying, think outside the square, articulate their achievements and points of difference, build professional connections and ultimately, feel more confident when leaving university. It's important that students don't wait until they are applying for graduate roles to focus on becoming 'work-ready'. Below are five on-campus facilities that can help students boost their employability prospects while at uni.

A Year 12 Guide for Parents

Despite there being mountains of books written about the first few years of children's lives, there are few Year 12 guides for parents. We're here to help! Firstly, congratulations, your child has made it to Year 12. It really is the last mile in the marathon of parenting a student. Here are some key milestones for parents and carers to think about as your child heads into Year 12.

Science Careers in Smart Farming

The world's population is on the rise, and that means we need to produce more food, more sustainably to feed everyone. In fact, we'll have to produce a massive 51% more food by 2050 to meet this demand. Scientists working in Australia's thriving agriculture industry are tackling the issue head-on, using cutting-edge technology to help revolutionise farming.
